

Alison is the Administrative Support Assistant in the Office of Development Communications, where she began her Penn State career in 2017. Prior to joining the University, Alison worked in both the financial services and software industries in various roles in executive administrative support, corporate management, and human resources.

Originally from Pittsburgh, Alison graduated from Penn State and was fortunate to continue living and working in Happy Valley after college. She currently resides in State College with her husband Robert, daughter Rachel, a Penn State student at University Park, and son Michael, who attends State College Area High School.